DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Mersky (WO 95/06398).

Regarding claim 1, Mersky teaches an acoustic equipment (figures 3-5) that comprises a columnar magnetostrictor (20) having a fixed end and a free end, a magnetic field generator (17) for generating a magnetic field to expand and contract the columnar magnetostrictor by a driver current based on an acoustic signal (see the abstract), a vibration transmitter (31, 35, 37) and an elastic member (27, 33) as claimed. As shown in figures 3-5, the vibration transmitter is disposed on one side of the columnar magnetostrictor and arranged to transmit vibration caused by expansion and contraction of the columnar magnetostrictor to a vibrator (40, 41, page 13, lines 4-10), and the elastic member (27, 33) is disposed between a stopper (see the housing 11 at the fixed end of the magnetostrictor in figure 3) and the vibration transmitter (31, 35) as claimed.

Regarding claim 2, as shown in figure 3, the elastic member (27) can come into contact with at least one end face of the columnar magnetostrictor (20) through the magnet.

Regarding claim 3, Mersky teaches a magnet (23, 25) for generating a bias magnetic field. As shown in figure 3, the magnet (23) can come into contact with one end face of the columnar magnetostrictor (20), and the elastic member (27) can come into contact with another end face of the magnet (23).

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Mersky et al. (U.S. patent 5,460,593) teaches a method and apparatus for imparting low amplitude vibrations to bone and hard living tissue.

Cross et al. (U.S. patent 7,224,814) teaches a two-way communication device that includes a magnetostrictive rod.
